

CISCE'S MODIFIED PLAN FOR ASSESSMENT FOR THE ACADEMIC YEAR 2021-22

In view of the continuing pandemic situation in the Country, CISCE has come up with a different method of conducting examinations for the academic year 2021-22. The details of this modified assessment plan academic year 2021-22 are given below:

The academic session 2021-22 will be divided into two semesters with approximately 50% of the syllabus being covered in each semester.

The reduced syllabus for class X for the examination year 2022 has accordingly been bifurcated, and units/subunits to be covered in each semester. The semester-wise bifurcated theory syllabus for classes X is available on the CISCE website under publications.

The CISCE will conduct examinations at the end of each semester.

1. FIRST SEMESTER EXAMINATION –

The first semester examination will be conducted in November 2021 and will be based only on the portion of syllabus (reduced syllabus for the ICSE examination year 2022) specified for the first semester. This will be an MCQ based examination, which will be conducted online.

2. SECOND SEMESTER EXAMINATION-

The second semester examination will be conducted in March/April 2022 and will be based only on the portion of syllabus (reduced syllabus for ICSE Examination year 2022) specified for the second semester. This examination will be conducted in online/offline mode, depending upon the pandemic situation in the country.

PROJECT WORK

In addition to the semester examinations conducted by the CISCE during the academic year, candidates will also be assessed on internal assessment. The mark-weightage of the same remains unchanged.
